PRESIDENT DEFENDS TARIFF VETOES

SAYS TARIFF OUGHT NOT TO BE CHANGED EXCEPT WHERE BUUSINESS WILL BE DISTURBED LEAST.

THE BLACKSMITH'S TOOLS

In Tariff Making Should Be Supplanted By Accurate Information.

By Associated Press.

Grand Rapids, Mich, Sept 21—President Taft in a speech here this afternoon defended his vetoes of the woolen, free list and cotton bills and attacked those measures as makeshifts and subterfuges.

Declaring his own position he said "I am in favor of the reduction of the tariff wherever it can be done and still give a living measure of protection to those industries of the country that need it But I insist that we have reached now a point in the history of tariff making when everyone ought to realize that the tariff should not be changed and business disturbed, except upon information which shall enable us to pass bills that will disturb it least. Our whole business system rests upon the protective tariff basis The real hope of men who are in favor of lowering duties is to pursue the policy of securing accurate information to keep the tariff rates down as low as possible consistent with the life of the business protected The natural operation of the tariff under those conditions and American ingenuity is to continue to reduce the cost of production, and that in itself will secure, if we adhere to the policy, a reduction of the tariff rates from time to time, but to cut them now with 'blacksmith's tools' to invite in the next two or four years to revulsion of feeling, and then a recurrence of higher rates and the old system of high tariffs. This I would deprecate, and so far as I can with the powers given me by the Constitution, I propose to stop such a movement and to secure a reduction in accordance with the principles of the Republican platform, and on information accurate and impartial. If that policy is not approved by the electorate, then, of course, those of us who are now in office must give way to men who will carry out a different policy, but while we are in office our position ought clearly to be understood We follow this policy not only because we are pledged to it, but because we believe it right, because we believe that a full discussion and a clear perception on the part of the people will convince them ultimately to approve and adopt it."

In opening his speech he reviewed the agitation that lead to the appointment of the tariff board and quoted the resolutions from various state platforms demanding the appointment of such a commission

"I have gone over the history of the movement of the tariff board," said the President to show how fully committed I am to the proposition that we ought not to have any revision of a schedule of the tariff without accurate information as to the operation and effect of the proposed changes, and further to show that in this view I have had in the past the hearty support not only of the regular Republicans, but also, and even with more emphasis, those who call themselves Progressive Republicans

"Second I also wish to point out that all Republicans of whatever shade are committed to the maintenance of our protected industries to the point of retaining duties on imported articles which shall equal the differences in the cost of production at home and abroad.

"Third Except for the extra session called only to pass upon the reciprocity bill, the first time that the Sixty second Congress could consider and pass upon tariff schedules would be in December, and at that time its predecessor, by consent of both parties, had fixed as the proper time at which a full report as to the most objectionable schedule ought to be reported With the money granted me by Congress I had provided a board, nonpartisan, and with the same personnel as the statutory board would have had, to make a report not only upon wool but also upon cotton.

"Although many of the Democrats had assisted in the support of the statutory Tariff Board bill and had advocated such a means of securing accurate information in respect of the probable operation of the proposed revision, the House at once began to make a record for political purposes by passing three tariff bills, the wool bill, the free list bill, and the cotton bill They gave no public hearings of any kind on either of these bills and they presented no satisfactory information upon which the effect of any of them upon the industries involved could be judged Their investigations may have been sufficient to satisfy the conscience of a tariff for revenue man who believes in any reduction, however great, of exisiting duties, but for one pledged as I am to maintain a tariff high enough to enable exisiting industries to live, the case is different.

"The wool bill proposed a revenue duty of 20 per cent upon raw wool instead of 11 cents a pound, a reduction of considerably more than 50 per cent of the present duty, and an average duty of 50 per cent on woolen cloth and manufacturers This was avowedly a tariff for revenue and was not drawn for the purpose of protecting the industries It passed the House and went to the Senate, where an insurgent Republican Senator proposed a substitute in which the duty on wool of the first class was fixed at 40 per cent, and of a second class, or carpet wools, at 10 per cent, and the average percentage on the woolen manufacturers was made 60 per cent ad valorem It was claimed by its author to be a protection bill It was never submitted to a committee no evidence was ever taken in regard to it, and it was evolved from the independent investigation of a single Senator A majority of the insurgents and the Democrats in the Senate compromised on a bill which made the tax on raw wool, first class 35 per cent, second class, 10 per cent, and the average duty on woolens at 55 per cent The bill, against the vote of nearly all of the regular Republicans and some insurgent Republicans, passed the Senate and was sent to conference, where a bill was agreed upon in which the duty was 29 per cent on raw wool, and an average of 49 per cent on woolens. This bill had the effect of raising the duty on carpet wools, as fixed in the Senate, 19 per cent, and as fixed in the House, 9 per cent. Here was the first case presented to me. There was nothing in the record in either the House or Senate from which I could obtain any information as to the effect of this bill upon the wool and woolen industry of this country. I submit that the history of its making shows no principle whatever in the bill except a compromise between two opposing principles for the purpose of passing the bill, without any indication as to its effect on the industry to which it applies

"This bill reduced the duty on woolens to an average of 49 per cent, with a duty on the raw material wool of 29 per cent The Wilson bill passed in 1894, had reduced the duty to 50 per cent, with no duty on the raw wool at all a much more favorable arrangement to the manufacturers than in the present bill and yet the years of the Wilson bill were years of disaster to the woolen manufacturers It may be that other causes than the tariff contributed to the failure of woolen mills in the time of the Wilson bill, and it may well be that conditions in the woolen business have changed so that it does not need as much protection as then, but I had no adequate information and had been furnished none, upon which I could say that the bill presented to me was in accord with the Republican platform of protection upon which I was elected, and to which I am in honor bound to square my official act and policy In the absence of such adequate information, and with the prospect of securing it in three months it became my bounden duty to withhold my approval of the bill What was the necessity for such great haste in passing the bill at an extra session called for another purpose? The bill as it passed the House provided it should go into effect January 1 1912 The bill as it passed the Senate contained a similar provision When the bill went into conference, I am informed that the suggestion was made that the date of January 1, 1912, for its taking effect would furnish a strong argument for delaying its passage until after December 1, when the Tariff Board could report The date of taking effect was thereupon changed to October 15, 1911 Such care was not taken with the free list bill or the cotton bill, both of which were made to take effect January 1, 1912.

"Schedule K had been in force so long and its percentages were so high in many respects that I had not hesitated in times past to say that it ought to be reduced, and to explain how it came not to be reduced in the Payne bill as it ought to have been But it is one thing to know that a scedule of this sort is too high, and it is a very different thing in such a complicated scedule to know upon what items the reductions should be made and how great the reductions ought to be If the principle to which I am committed and to which the party is committed in the strong terms of the resolutions, which I have quoted above, was to be observed as a policy at all, here was the occasion for following it If I had allowed the wool bill to become a law, the progress made in public opinion toward a better method of revising the tariff would have been entirely lost and the policy cast to the winds

Some defense is made of the bill on the ground that the Committee on Ways and Means had considered it carefully in committee for a month or more, but the point is that the bill they prepared is not this bill It is changed in all of its rates and materially changed to meet by compromise a bill that was never in committee at all, and the blending was done, as was said, with blacksmith's tools' The House bill was a free trade or at least an antiprotection bill, what the hybrid was, who could tell? In view of the enormous value of the wool and woolen industry which might be disastrously affected by the bill, was it asking too much to delay the bill under the circumstances for 90 days merely to secure accurate information? I thought not Indeed I could find no argument which would satisfy my conscience in signing the bill

"The free list bill was called the 'farmers' free list,' for the purpose of giving an impression that it was passed to compensate the farmers for some sort of injury supposed to be done by the Canadian reciprocity treaty. This reason was finally repudiated by the leader of the Democracy on the floor of the House of Representatives, and is certainly not true. There was nothing in the Canadian reciprocity bill that required any compensation to the farmers for in a very short period after actual operation it will appear that they, as well as everybody else have been improved in condition by our larger trade with Canada But the bill was framed and came to me in a form calculated to mislead as to its effect In the first clause all agricultural implements were declared to be free, and a great many were named These same implements were named in the Payne bill and were made free in that bill from any country which prmitted our agricultural implements to enter it without duty This opened to England the market of the United States for agricultural implements As a matter of fact, the price of agricultural implements in America is cheaper as shown by a report of the Bureau of Trade Relations of the State Department to the American farmers than to any farmers in the world England is the one country that exports agricultural implements to any great extent and so successful is the competition against her in this country of American agricultural implements that practically very few

CALIFORNIA WOMEN FIGHT FOR VOTES

NO CAMPAIGN IN GOLDEN STATE EVER FOUGHT WITH GREATER DETERMINATION.

ARE GREAT CAMPAIGNERS

Conduct of Campaign a Revelation To Seasoned Politicians Even.

San Francisco, Cal, Sept 21—On October 10, only a trifle more than two weeks hence, the voters of California for the second time in the history of the State will decide by their vote whether women shall have the right to vote The last time woman suffrage was submitted to the ballot in this State it was defeated by only 3,000 votes Times have changed since then and the advocates of women's rights are not only more hopeful of success than ever before but quite confident that California will be in the act of becoming the sixth state in the Union to grant suffrage to women

Never was a political campaign in this State fought with greater determination than the one now drawing to a close The women of California realized the importance of a victory at this time, and inspired and encouraged by the success of the women in other western States, entered upon this campaign with tremendous energy and determination When the legislature decided to submit a constitutional amendment, giving women the right to vote, to a referendum vote on October 10, it did not find the women of the State unprepared

More than two years ago the first step was taken to prepare the women of California for just such an emergency It was Mrs James Lee Laidlaw, chairman of the Women Suffrage party of New York City who by her individual efforts induced the women of California to organize for the purpose of making a fight for suffrage The ground was well prepared and when the legislature voted for the submission of the women suffrage amendment to the State constitution, the organized women of this State were ready to begin the battle

Fully realizing the importance of a thorough and energetic campaign the women of California sent out an appeal to the friends of women's suffrage throughout the United State and elsewhere Nobly did their freind respond to the appeal From all part of the world came encouraging letters from men and women interested in the success of the women of California fighting for their rights J I Braly of Pasadena, a retired business man of great wealth, organized under the name of the Political Equality League a powerful body of prominent men and women bound together by the common desire to aid the women's suffrage movement.

In every State of the Union where there are friends of women's suffrage meetings were held, resolutions passed, giving moral support to the battling suffragists in California and funds were contributed to help the women of this State in their great struggle The women of New York headed by Mrs. Laidlaw, willingly came to the assistance of their sisters on the Pacific coast. Miss Jeannette Rankins, sent by Mrs Laidlaw Mrs Helen Greeley, Mrs. Archibald C Fisk and other distinguished leaders and organizers of the woman's suffrage movement in Greater New York, came to California to help by word and deed in the campaign Large sums were raised during the week of self-denial, when men and women, anxious to help the women in California, denied themselves some luxuries and contributed the money thus saved to the campaign fund.

The energetic, businesslike and effective manner in which the women of this State have conducted their campaign has been a revelation to such men even who have made politics a business for many years and have grown gray in it. There was no uncertainty about the methods employed and everything was thoroughly up-to-date. The women throughout the State were thoroughly organized and everywhere meetings were held speeches made and literature distributed In many places house-to house canvasses were made by special committees of women and all men favorable to the movement were enlisted in the campaign.

The opposition, which includes many distinguished and powerful men like Gen Harrison Otis, former United States Senator Frank P Flint, Oscar P Lawler, former assistant United States attorney general in the department of the interior; former United States senator Cole, President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California and many others, has by no means been idle and is still carrying on its campaign in all parts of the State

JEWISH NEW YEAR BEGINS ON FRIDAY

According To Jewish Calendar New Year Will Be 5617—A Day of Remembrance.

The celebration of the Jewish New Year begins at sundown on Friday This sacred day among the Jews falls this year on Saturday, but according to the Jewish calendar the setting of the sun marks the close of one day and the beginning of another

The year according to the Jewish calendar is 5672

New year is observed as a holy day by the Jew all over the world and until sundown Saturday no business of any nature whatever will be transacted by the faithful The orthodox Jew usually observes two days for the sake of safety Next to the day of Atonement, Yom Kipper, new year's day is one of the most sacred observed

In Leviticus, chapter twenty-three will be found the scriptural injunction for the observance of the holiday There it is written "In the seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye have a Sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets, holy convocation Ezra also refers to the day as one only to the Lord

Unlike the secular day of new year is usually observed this day, Rosh Hashanah is considered a day of memorial or a day of remembrance reminding the Jew of the duty of self examination and self judgement To arouse the conscience to this solemn task the ceremony of sounding the shofar or ram's horn, forms an important feature of the service Among the orthodox Jews, attainment of this object is also sought by setting aside a few days before new year's day for the recital in the synagogue of penitential prayers called Selihot This continues until the eve of the day of Atonement, Yom Kippur These Selihot are chanted in the minor chords before dawn, in the dimly lit houses of worship These impressive prayers sound the note of grief and contrition for the sins of the past year.

In many places the curious ceremony of Tashlich, originating perhaps with the German Jews not earlier than the fourteenth century, is observed on the afternoon of new year's day The worshippers congregate near a running stream when the eighteenth to twentieth verses of the seventh chapter of Micah are intoned, ending with the phrase which no doubt suggested the ceremony, "Thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea"

After the solemn services on Friday evening and in the morning Saturday, the Hebrew greeting is heard on all sides, signifying 'A good year or "Mayest thou be inscribed (in the Book of Life) for a good year" In latter years a custom has appeared of sending to friends new year's greeting cards and often gifts When stars begin to peep out at the close of the day after earnest devotions are done the festival is made an occasion of social and domestic rejoicing.

LETTER TO GLENN BROS.

Dear Sirs. The wear of paint goes by gallons; the less-gallons paint wears longest It takes less gallons because it is strong; it wears a long time, because it is strong It is all paint and the strongest paint

There is a best paint among all paint paints No two are alike, of course, no two cover alike or wear alike One is thin, another is thick, one has too much lead, another too much zinc, another is right. The right is Devoe, so far as is yet known Perhaps somebody-else will find-out a better paint than Devoe; then Devoe will become a more-gallons paint, a costlier paint, a weaker paint, a less durable paint, a less economical paint, a timid paint.

Bigger changes than that have come over the world Devoe has the lead, why shouldn't we lose it to somebody-else?

SOMETHING OF BUSINESS

Artificial Limbs Have Been Made Before Time of Christ—Never Was a "Cork Leg"

What do you suppose becomes of all the people who have the misfortune to lose one or both legs or arms You will possibly remark that they are out on the streets begging But not so If this were the case the ordinary person could not pass down the streets of Tulsa for the army of mendicants that would fill the sidewalks

A man was in Tulsa yesterday who represents a Chicago artificial limb factory Both of his legs are gone but you couldn't hardly tell it to see him on the streets His artificial limbs are almost perfect substitutes for the missing legs, and he passes them as effective demonstrators to those he calls upon for the purpose of selling his wares Regarding the great army of armless and legless ones about the country, he said

"Persons who are not in touch with this phase of our life have no idea of the great number of men who are maimed daily In Chicago alone it is estimated that on an average three legs are amputated each day, in the state about nineteen In Pittsburg there are nine taken off each day and in the state of Pennsylvania an average of about thirty five Ohio comes next with twenty seven a day and in New York the average runs to about twenty six

So, you see, if the unfortunate were compelled to give up work because of their affliction the army of beggers, peddlers would be enormous In the hurly burly of present day life men are mowed down in the industrial fields in far greater numbers than they were ever maimed in battle The general use of the machinery, is a constant danger to the working man and not only is this true in the factories, but in the agricultural districts, too Years ago the proportion of deaths followed amputations was high but today surgical science has advanced so tremendously that the proportion of fatalities is insignificant To meet the new conditions manufacturers of artificial limbs have had to keep abreast of the times as it were and today the industry is one that commands millions of capital

Loss of one, or even both legs, is no longer considered a serious handicap to a man Improvements made within the last few years in the manufacture of artificial limbs have been so great that many men who feared after the amputation of one or both legs that their days of usefulness were over now find that with artificial limbs they can accomplish practically all that they could with their natural limbs, and in some cases they can do more Authenticated cases of men minus both legs riding bicycles, engaging in athletic sports and in various lines of work are common and there is one case of a man who after having both legs cut off in a little practice, to become a slack wire walker with his artificial legs"

With two exceptions all of the 102 employes of a Chicago artificial leg factory wear one or two artificial turned leg The sight is uncanny to in the shop office to show the newly fitted patients how easy it is to walk run and jump with a manufactured legs The sight is uncanny to the unafflicted man; to the unfortunate who must get an artificial leg or legs it is a revelation that fills him with new hope

Manufacture of artificial legs has been going on since the early days of the Roman Empire It was explained to a reporter In the Royal College of Surgeons, London, there is an artificial leg made of bronze and wood, which was found by a scientific exploration party in a tomb at Capua, Italy, in 1885 Its date is estimated as about 300 B C

But there is little resemblance between this relic and the modern artificial limb The former was a heavy clumsy contrivance, the present day article is so nearly life like that an army surgeon has been fooled by it and in action the movement is natural

At the present time there is no such thing as a 'cork leg' and it is doubtful if there ever was one While some authorities believe that the name may have been derived from a supposed practice of riveting cork to a solid wood core in the manufacture of artificial legs, others claim the name was derived from that of a man named Cork, who made artificial legs in New York City early in the last century.

In the present day manufacture of artificial legs they are made of English willow, covered with a thin parchment and enamiled, or of wood and leather The mechanism which takes the place of the joints, in the natural leg is of case hardened steel plated with nickel, silver or gold The foot is of sponge rubber cemented on hickory cores and has a resiliency that absorbs all shock in walking and permits of a natural step—Tulsa World

For mission work in rural England an automobile has been equipped with an altar and other fittings and duly consecrated by church authorities

A railroad car 103 feet long, weighing 196 000 pounds and with a capacity of 150 tons built for a Pennsylvania steel company, is said to be the longest and most powerful ever constructed

505 CITY PLATE 505

Wichita Falls, Texas, Sept. 21, 1911

"THIS DATE IN HISTORY,"

September 21.

1558—Charles V. of Germany died. Born Feb. 24, 1500.

1779—Galvez captured Baton Rouge from the British

1780—Major Andre landed at West Point to confer with Arnold.

1792—The National Convention, in France abolished royalty and declared a republic.

1832—Sir Walter Scott, the famous novelist died Born Aug. 15, 1771.

1846—American army under General Taylor commenced the siege of Monterey, which surrendered three days later.

1904—King Peter of Servia crowned at Belgrade.

1910—Democrats of Wyoming nominated Joseph M. Carey for governor

Let's close up the deals for the glass factory and the oil refinery.

Hon. C. B. Randell has announced that he will make his opening speech as a candidate for the U. S Senate at Waco on Saturday, October 7th

If those who favor the nomination of Woodrow Wilson as the Democratic presidential candidate desire to properly look after his political interests the Times will make the suggestion that this can be best accomplished by organization. Some one should take the lead in this matter and start a movement for the organization of a "Wilson Democratic Club" The next president of these United States is going to be a Democrat.

The greatest political farce that was ever enacted in Texas will come off next summer according to press dispatches We refer to the candidacy oof A. M. Kennedy for congressmant-at-large. The idea of a man of his character and meagre ability asking for that position is almost a disgrace to the state and should be met with the just criticism that it deserves —Childress Index.

If Kennedy wants to make the race for congressman-at-large, that is his privilege There are a whole lot of people in Texas who would like the privilege of passing on his claims for any public office, and it might be the best thing that could happen to Kennedy to find just how the people of Texas regard a man of his calibre By all means, encourage him to make the race It is about the only way thousands of Democrats will have the opportunity of expressing their contempt for him.

Many a town has found out to its sorrow that it did not look good enough to the farmer to induce him to kill his team getting to it Country life in many sections means almost isolation four months in the year—Bonham Daily Favorite.

That is a splendid argument for good roads Wichita Falls wants to build good roads, and if the farmers will join in the movement on October 13th, (the day set for the election to vote $150,000 worth of bonds for that purpose), there will be good roads constructed leading into Wichita Falls from four directions

Because Texas' member of the National Democratic Executive Committee is opposed to the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson, it must not be inferred that a majority of Texas Democrats are of that way of thingking For instance, Culberson and fourteen of the eighteen members of congress, twenty-three of the thirty-one State senators and eighty seven of the 183 members of the House of Representatives favor Wilson, and are leading his fight in Texas

A suffragette baby show is to be one of the annex attractions at the coming New York pure food show At first it was planned to have on exhibition only the babies of the suffragettes themselves, but a canvas showed the wisdom of allowing the nieces and nephews to be exhibited With this opening up for "sister's child," the show has been assigned a regular space, instead of a booth, as at first appeared to be sufficient for the purposes—Temple Telegram.

There is to be a demonstration of "He Fell in Love With His Wife," to be called "Partners." May Buckley and Frederick Burton are to appear in it.

San Antonio Texas, Sept 21—Fifty years behind the walls of a cloister is the experience of Sister Euphrasia of the Ursuline Convent in this city During a half century, she has never broken the cloister by leaving the grounds of the convent. In honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the acceptance of vows one day of religious and social celebration will be held at the Ursuline Convent, October 21 Sister Euphrasia came to the convent fifty two years ago on October 21, and became an aspirant for the veil and two years later took the vow. She is a marked favorite among the alumnae membership because of her many years as supervisor of the dining room and close contact with the pupils.

NILES MAN OF MYSTERY REPUDIATED BY MOTHER

By Associated Press.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 21.—Niles "man of mystery," repudiated by his aged mother prepared for further cross examination today. Mrs. Kimmel still insists her son is dead.

"Kimmel," who disappeared thirteen years ago and now returns after $5,000 life insurance had been paid Mrs. Kimmel for his death, said he had no motive in returning other than to see his mother.

"I don't want to cheat anyone out of the $20,000 more life insurance which my relatives would receive if they could prove I'm dead," said Kimmel, "but I am not dead"

"After being knocked in the head in what appeared to be an attempt to put me out of business, after being sent to the Auburn penitentiary for five years on a charge of stealing 25 cents and after otherwise being so badly treated that my mind is almost gone, I wanted to come home. It was impossible for me to pretend for the rest of my life that I was dead just so that somebody could enjoy $25,000 If my mother will not recognize me, I will not force her to. All my friends here know that I am the real George Kimmel. So does my mother know I'm not an imposter

"When I disappeared from home thirteen years ago, undoubtedly my family did think I was dead. Seven years later my mother proved in court that there was evidence to show that I was dead. One insurance company promptly paid her $5,000, but another company holding a $20,000 policy appealed and said that they would find me. They did locate me in jail Then my mother heard of it but she refused to change her position. Four years ago they brought us face to face in Auburn penitentiary. My mother appeared not to recognize me. While we were talking the guards stepped aside and I whispered in my mother's ear 'What am I to call you if not mother?' She looked at me in silence and then whispered, 'When we are alone call me mother.'

"That was an outburst of mother love which she could not suppress Afterward she appeared to regret it I wonder whether that impulse will reassert itself or whether, while acknolwledged by my friends, I am forever to be disowned by my mother."

Kimmel today was still at the home of Mrs Harry T Fox, who recognized him as a cousin. He said his mother would have to call on him if she wanted to see him.

"This man is not Kimmel," said Chief of Police George Francis today after a conference with the mother "I went to school with the real Kimmel and would know him well When I asked this man my name, he could not tell

Earth from Evil Man's Grave Used on Complaining Subject

The use of earth from a wicked man's grave and the burning of dead ly poisons in the cure of disease and as weapons against the spirits of darkness has caused complaints of theft and vagrancy to be filed against a Fort Worth clairvoyant who claims for herself unusual powers

The filing of the complaints followed revelations made by a woman who had been the victim of the clairvoyant's methods to the amount of $180 all the money she possessed or could borrow

The victim told the officers and the county attorney's assistant a strange story She is a widow and was engaged to marry a man out West when he died suddenly . About the same time her little son's hand was cut off in a street car accident. Upon the advice of a friend she went to the clairvoyant, convinced that she was beset by the forces of evil

The clairvoyant strengthened her faith that spirits of darkness threatened her The clairvoyant said that there were four spirits who had conspired against her, but not to fear she could overcome the evell forces The clairvoyant's first act was to provide a flannel suit for the child The garment was held in the fumes of burning arsenic, and over burning earth taken, so the clairvoyant said, from the grave of a wicked man While the operation was in process the clairvoyant recited a wierd incantation against the evil spirits The victim said that a cure was guaranteed

When months had elapsed, without the child being improved in its physical condition, and without any change to better fortune, the complainant asked for a portion of her $180 back

Then the clairvoyant threatened the victim with the same evil spirits which she had attempted to placate In spite of the dire threats and a note planted to her door Monday morning the victim put the story in the hands of the officers. The warrants have not yet been served on the clairvoyant

Dizziness Due To Various Causes.

(By Gordon Lloyd, M D)

Swimming in the head, or vertigo, may be due to twenty different causes To name but a few of these, there are ocular vertigo, gastric vertigo, nasal vertigo, anemia of the brain hysterical vertigo and vertigo due to congestion of the brain

But perhaps the most persistent and intense dizziness is due to the disease of the inner ear. Connected with this part of the ear in the wall of the skull are three small canals partially filled with fluid. When the body is leaned one way or the other the relation of this fluid to the cavities containing it is changed and nerves connecting these canals with the brain convey to the brain an impression or sensation indicative of the leaning position assumed by the body. Thus we are able to keep our balance in the dark or with our eyes closed, since nature has provided us with this unique balancing or leveling apparatus.

Now anything which unduly disturbs these canals produces a false sensation of movement and consequent dizziness. For example, if one twirl around on the heel, as children some times do, dizziness results, because the fluid in the balancing canals is set in motion and continues to flow after the body has ceased to revolve.

That part of the brain to which the nerves pass from the balancing canals must remain normal if the individual is to be free from dizziness Any change in the blood flowing through this brain center may bring on vertigo Thus when a woman faints she becomes dizzy and loses her balance because most of the blood has left the brain and not enough is passing through the balancing center to insure normal action Likewise too much blood in the brain by flooding this center produces vertigo

Doing Things By Clear Thinking

With a Stitch in Time.

To know of and use a food that will feed and restore brain and nerves before slight nervous troubles end in complete nervous prostration or brain-fag is wise, for unless proper food is supplied daily it is unreasonable to expect the nervous system to answer the demands made upon it.

There is a food, Grape-Nuts, for the particular purpose of restoring weakened nerves or fagged brain to health and strength

A business man, of Baltimore, who made the trial says:

"Two years ago my health had become so seriously impaired it was impossible for me to attend to business. At the least exertion my nerves would give way and the condition of my system allowed me little or no rest or sleep at night. Stomach trouble soon followed and I could take no solid food. I tried the best tonics and medicines but they all failed.

"Finally Grape-Nuts food was recommended and after using it for 10 days I began to feel its good results and at the end of three months I was again a well man—nerves restored to their normal condition, strength renewed, and I was able to do any amount of both mental and physical work without feeling unduly fatigued.

"I know Grape-Nuts built up my brain and nerves and still keep them strong and vigorous just exactly as food builds up muscles or fat, for instance, and I am glad to have learned this valuable lesson." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days proves things when Grape-Nuts food is used. "There's a Reason."

ANSWER

One—the flat, sad, sickly looking one—was baked with poor baking powder; possibly the high priced kind—possibly the cheap, big can kind. It denotes a lack of leavening gas, or an uneven distribution of same—or both. The other—the large, light, fluffy one—was prepared with Calumet Baking Powder, and denotes the never-failing, delicious baking that always results from its use.

Calumet does not cost as much as the high price baking powder, but it is very much superior in every way—it is purer—more reliable—more healthful. Here are the reasons:

All baking powders undergo a chemical change in the process of baking. You do not take it into the stomach in the same form as it is in the can. For example: When you use Cream of Tartar Baking Powder you get Rochelle Salts in your food, because the Cream of Tartar during this reaction turns into Rochelle Salts. This, as you know, is a drug, and should be taken only under doctor's orders.

Calumet is so carefully and scientifically prepared that the neutralization of the ingredients is absolutely perfect.

That it is absolutely pure and of highest quality is proven by the fact that have come in from England. This first clause, therefore, of the free-list bill offers no boon to the farmers at all, although apparently drawn for the purpose of inducing them to think so. It does contain some very general words at the close of the specially mentioned articles which by interpretation might be made to include 150 different articles used on the farm, but used in other vocations also. And these articles—the hammers, the tools, the cutlery and the machinery of various kinds—are now dutiable under the metal schedule. To admit them under this clause would be to destroy entirely the symetry of the metal schedule and produce such a confussion as to seriously interfere with the administration of the tariff act.

"Another clause provides for the admission of barbed-wire fencing free and then all wire and other material which could be used for fencing, and includes wire rods and wire rope. To let in barbed-wire fencing alone would be unimportant to producers, but the framing of the amending clause is such that if it were to go into law it would have a serious effect upon the metal schedule and would utterly destroy the principle which was followed in its framing and would make free of duty some of the most highly wrought articles under the metal schedule not used by farmers at all Then there is a clause admitting jute and cotton bagging free, and materials from which made, which would allow common cotton cloth to come in free for any purpose, although under the cotton schedule, even as proposed to be amended by this Congress cotton cloth is to pay a certain amount of duty. The bill also puts boots and shoes of all kinds on the free list. It did not put on the free list, except some kinds of leather, the materials which went into shoes. In other words, it put on the free list the finished product and continued the tax on raw materials This would be such a burden on our manufacturers that its injustice must appeal to everyone. The fact is that under the Dingley bill imported shoes were taxed 25 per cent ad valorem, while in the Payne bill the duty was reduced from 25 per cent to 10 per cent the duty on hides was reduced from 15 per cent to nothing, and the duty on leather was reduced to 5 per cent No evidence was taken as to what effect this putting of shoes on the free list would have on the very highly important shoe industry of the country, and as it violated the first principles of justice in a tariff, namely, of putting the finished product on the free list and taxing the materials, it did not and could not commend itself to one who was pledged to the support of a moderate protective tariff.

"Finally, the free list has two clauses affecting meat and flour As they went through the House they put meat on the free list and flour on the free list. In the Senate, however, an amendment was put on limiting the operation of these two clauses to imports from those countries with which we have a reciprocal relation and which admit certain agricultural products of ours free. This limitation made Canada the only country which would be affected by the provisions of the clause. Now, in our negotiations with Canada for reciprocity we attempted to secure free meat and free flour. Canada would not consent to this, because she feared the effect of our competition with her meat and flour. This showed that importations of meat and flour from Canada without duty would not have any effect to lower the price in this country of either in normal times. But this free-list bill was giving to Canada something for nothing. This Congress at the close of the act approving the Canadian reciprocity agreement directed me to continue negotiations and expand its terms, and yet in these provisions it proposed to deprive me of using the concessions of free meat and free flour to secure concessions from Canada. Thus the bill was so loosely drawn, it was drawn on such a wrong principle, and with so little information, and it purported to do so many things which it did not do, that I had no hesitation in vetoing it.

"Finally, the cotton bill came to me. This bill differed from the others in being a bill for which the Democrats alone, and not the insurgent Republicans were responsible. It had passed the House on the report of the Ways and Means Committee made without the taking of any evidence of persons interested in the manufacture or anyone else; it had completely changed the method of classifying cottons, classifying them according to the threads in the yarn instead of by the threads of the piece and the specific duty upon the square yard, as in the present bill. This was a most important change, and it had been adopted after an informal communication in writing with the Bureau of Standards and after an adverse report by the Treasury experts. The bill was adopted avowedly as a free trade bill by the House. It came to the Senate and was passed in the form in which it passed the House except that certain amendments were added. One was an amendment cutting down the metal schedule by a sweeping reduction of 30 per cent, and the other was an amendment of the chemical schedule with a purported reduction ad valorem of 25 per cent So hastily was the bill thrown together, so little attention was paid to the consideration of it in the Senate, especially in the chemical schedule that the most ludicrous results were reached. In the first place, although the amendments radically changed the metal and chemical schedules, no change was made in the title, which still read 'Ant act to reduce duties on cotton manufactures.' An amendment was introduced in order to make certain that in the cotton and chemical schedules there must be a reduction of all rates to not more than 30 per cent ad valoremm, but it was so placed in the act that by its langauge it could only apply to goods already in the customhouse, upon which duty had not been paid The calculations by which the specific duties in the chemical schedule were transmitted into ad valorem rates and then reduced 25 per cent were exceedingly faulty. The Senator who proposed the reductions said that he had secured the services of a statistician at the Treasury Dpeartment, who had done the work as he told him to do it, and that that was all he knew about it

"Senator Williams, a Democratic member of the Committee on Finance of the Senate, objected to this method of adopting a most important schedule. The chemical schedule is the first schedule in the list. It has 85 items, and of these 66 have specific duties. It affects many millions of imports Nevertheless, the bill went through, and it went back to the House and was submitted to two days examination by the Ways and Means Committee of that body.

"Then it passed the House under a rule that permitted no amendment whatever. I had the bill examined by experts, especially with respect to the chemical schedule, and even in the very short time I had, I found the greatest confusion produced by the amendment. Upon a number of the articles the reduction was greatly more than the proposed 25 per cent reaching in some cases 75 and 100 per cent, and on other articles, instead of being a decrease, there was an increase all the way from 5 to 100 per cent. The bill was supposed to be a concession to the North Carolina cotton interests, and to be intended to cheapen the bleaching, dyeing, and coloring materials needed in that business. The very comical effect of the bill as amended was that instead of reducing the duty on bleaching powder 25 per cent, it increased 40 per cent. But even a more serious defect in the bill was in those changes affecting the alcoholic compounds contained in four or five items, in respect to which in the Payne bill and in all previous tariff bills, in order to prevent the use of these items to import alcohol at a small duty, compensatory duties had been imposed of about 40 cents a pound, or $4 60 a gallon. Under the provisions of the new bill, these alcoholic compounds and articles containing alcohol would come in at a duty, making the tax on the alcohol from 8 to 10 cents a gallon, while the internal revenue tax on alcohol in this country is $1.10 per proof gallon, and the duty imposed on it as an import is $2 60 a gallon. The opportunities for the introduction of cheap alcohol and the danger of evasion, or the breaking down of the internal revenue law by such a change in the chemical schedule, I need hardly elaborate. The bill was impossible and of course I vetoed it. There was in the passage of the bill, in the amendments, and in the general treatment an indication that the support of the bill was based rather on a desire to make a political record in favor of lower duties than upon a serious proposel to change the law. At least this is the only explanation that can be offered of the careless, unartificial, and altogether unsatisfactory character of the three bills.

"I have gone into this matter at considerable detail in order that my position with respect to these bills and the general treatment of the tariff may be understood."
